Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 03 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning colder, windier and more unsettled for Saturday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Spells of rain, heavy, at times moving eastwards across the UK, becoming mostly confined to the north and east by dawn. Clearer skies and showers follow. Risk of fog patches for parts of southeastern UK this evening. Turning windier.

Saturday:
A colder, windier and more unsettled day than on Friday with most areas seeing some showers or rain at times. Some sunny spells too, best in the south.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showers in the east initially on Sunday, snow over high ground, becoming mainly dry later. Organised band of rain clears east Monday, preceded by snow. Wet and increasingly windy Tuesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.